Description:

Welcome to this unique and private home in one of Boulder's most sought after neighborhoods, Mapleton Hill. Enter through the home's front gate and you'll forget you're just a few minutes walk from Downtown Boulder. The home was custom built for Naropa University's founder, Chögyam Trungpa Rinpoche, and is modeled after the Japanese post-and-beam design. It features hardwood floors, maple kitchen cabinets and abundant floor-to-ceiling windows which allow natural light to pour into every room. The fifth bedroom which adjoins another is ideal for a baby's room or for a home office with separate outside entrance. Outside, enjoy a peaceful ambience as you sit poolside in a lush, park-like private setting on nearly three-quarters of an acre. The backyard leads down to a sitting area by a tranquil stream adjacent to the property. Access this private oasis through an alley of 4th Street which has access to ample parking.
